David K. Wright, Monica G. Wright : Great Minnesota Taverns (Trails Books Guide) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Great Minnesota Taverns (Trails Books Guide):

Where's Vic's?By TundraBeeWell, what can I say about a book that purports to be a "Guide to Great Minnesota Taverns" that does not include Vic's Bar Grill in Moorhead, Minnesota nor does it include the International Eelpout Festival - one of the premier Beer Consumption Events in the US, Canada, and other places from which contestants happen to stagger? This book was written by a couple of Cheeseheads (Wisconsinites.) They do silly things like referring to Fargo, SOUTH Dakota [sic.] It seems that selection criteria involves how many foreign/microbrew (e.g. Yuppy) beers a place has on tap - although a few "working-class" REAL taverns are thrown in just to amuse the connoisseur (like watching the animals in the zoo.) For example, of a local bar in International Falls: "Forget about ordering any of your favorite brews and instead bend a macrobrew elbow with a regular patron." Gee, what if I really do like Budweiser and those proud Clydesdales? Of a place in Grand Marais: "Blessedly, ... (it) is a nonsmoking venue. ... No jukebox intrudes on the calm, which is enhanced by soft blues programming delivered by satellite." Oh bless their stiff little pinkie finger! If I can't smoke my cigarettes and sing along "North to Alaska" with Johnny Horton on the juke, what's the point of being in a bar? If you would like to tour Minnesota one "designer" brew at a time, this book's for you! If not, you can play Bar Bingo with the folks at Vic's. Mmm... Deep fried cheese burgers By Joey Browner If you need a Juicy Lucy and a tall Grain Belt, this book will tell you where to find one (Matt's, Minneapolis). Co-authors (and drunks) Monica and David Wright have created a spell-binding, page-turner, you won't put down 'til you've passed out. Although they have managed to steal some of my material, I won't press charges. There's plenty more where that came from. Also, my sources tell me this daughter/father team has just finished a sequel titled, "Great Thailand Taverns."

Father and daughter team David and Monica Wright serve up over 100 taverns where you'll find a good cold brew plus a whole lot more.

Thirsty for a pint? Grab this book and go! A great guide to Minnesota pubs with personality. -- Pamela Hill Nettleton, Editorial Director, Minnesota Monthly magazine About the Author David K.
