also my review on NW rv destinations. I know the NW pretty well but am always looking for better and cheaper ways to travel around, hide out, and explore. For economy camping and rv'ing this is the book. A little cheaply done (newsprint type paper) this 440 pp reference guide is full of all the little hidey holes and cheaper places to hang out. Much more fine detail for this geographical area than say Trailer Life's RV Directory. Has complete information and prices on all the out of the way and mainline economical places to stay. Does not include commercial places like Wal-Mart, Cracker Barrel, etc. Very broad coverage (Entire Western US). While on your way to a destination park you can explore these out of the way and local money savers. Such camps usually don't have full hookups, but for ~ $12 or less who cares, you can boondock for a night can't you -- maybe even a whole weekend! Please clean up after your pets and keep them controlled. An increasing number of camps are not allowing pets due to owners' abuse of this privilege. It's not the dog's fault. Our Miniature Schauzer loves to RV and we love taking him, but are often dismayed by the number of parks that will not allow pets anymore. 11 of 11 people found the following review helpful. Makes finding an overnight spot EASY. By Alphas thought I am always in the market for new editions of these gems. Having a small RV, living in Washington State but having children and grandchildren in Virginia and Maryland, I have used both the east and west versions of this book extensively for cross country trips. Some small errors slip in, usually due to the rapid changes in fees at state parks, but overall these books are the best buy anyone can have if they are looking for places to stay and enjoy without breaking the bank. You save more than the purchase price the first night on the road. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Free, or almost. By Thomas W. Wyman I haven't found this to be as helpful as I thought it would be.

Lists, alphabetically by state and city, all campgrounds where overnight camping fees of $12 or less are charged. It provides its buyers with an opportunity to save significantly on their travel costs when current overnight camping fees are typically $25 to $50 per night. The Western Edition now contains an enormous number of county and city parks with free or low-cost overnight camping as well as campgrounds of the national forests, national parks, bureau of land management, bureau of reclamation, Army Corps of Engineers and most state park systems.
