Edna A. Elfront : Roar of Thunder, Whisper of Wind: A Portrait of Michigan Waterfalls before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Roar of Thunder, Whisper of Wind: A Portrait of Michigan Waterfalls:

2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. A nice photography book of Michigan waterfallsBy Michael JohnsonI found this book in a Marquette bookstore. If you are interested in waterfalls of Michigan's U.P. and photography this will probably be worthwhile. It is full of BW photographs of various waterfalls. It is not the best reference guide for finding the waterfalls (for this look to Penrose's Guide to 199 Michigan Waterfalls). However, it is full of large format camera (i.e. sharp detail) pictures of the waterfalls. I personally think this is one of C.J Elfont's better efforts compared to his other books. In addition there are no other books which try to present the U.P.'s waterfalls with such nice photographs. For photographers there is nice documentation of the camera settings and type of camera used. Again it is all black and white photos.

C. J. Elfront is steadily developing his reputation as one of the premier black and white photographers in this country. His one-man shows and exhibits have appeared in galleries across the United States and Canada. When not out in the field adding to his portfolio, or preparing his photographs for gallery presentation in his basement darkroom, C. J. is a practicing children's dentist in Berkley, Michigan near Detroit. Edna A. Elfront holds a Ph.D. in biology and her list of scientific publications and papers runs nearly three pages long. She is also a published poet and with the preparation of this manuscript, her first major non-scientific effort, Edna begins a new page of writing accomplishments that is sure to grow in the years ahead as she and C. J. collaborate on future projects. The Elfronts live with their daughter in Huntington Woods, Michigan.
