Don Reid, Chris Falkenstein : Rock Climbing Tuolumne Meadows (Regional Rock Climbing Series) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Rock Climbing Tuolumne Meadows (Regional Rock Climbing Series):

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great. By yosemiteexplorer The most complete guide to Tuolumne climbing. Great. 5 of 6 people found the following review helpful. Weak descriptions, sub-optimal usability. By mcgalaxy This is one of the weakest climbing guide books I own. It's a small step up from a bunch of topo maps stabled together. While the book is fine for telling you which climbs a certain cliff contains, most of the climb descriptions are weak or non-existent. The authors purposefully omit topos for many easy classic climbs like Cathedral Peak. The most annoying part is that the appendix that has climbs indexed by difficulty does not have the page numbers for the topos listed along side them! You have to look at a different index to get those. Sub 5.10a climbers and especially Tuolumne newbies should buy other guides to the area first. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. I love this book

By Joseph T. Myers This is a solid climbing guidebook. Tuolumne Meadows is on my top 3 list for favorite places to climb on this planet, and both these two local authors make that experience even better! If you're going to Tuolumne, I just don't think you can go wrong with this book.

Tuolumne Meadows is famous for its clean rock, clear skies, and fabulous face and crack climbing on spectacular Sierra Nevada granite domes. In this thoroughly revised fourth edition of Rock Climbing Tuolumne Meadows, Don Reid and Chris Falkenstein share their extensive knowledge of this popular, high-country climbing area. Part of Yosemite National Park, Tuolumne Meadows, at an elevation of 8,500 feet, is often uncrowded and cool in the summer, providing an invigorating option to climbing areas at lower elevations. This is the only guidebook climbers will need to a pristine climbing experience on some of the finest rock in the world.

From the Back Cover For more than twenty-five years, FalconGuide has set the standard for outdoor recreation guidebooks. Written by top outdoors experts and enthusiasts, each guide invites you to experience the endless adventure and rugged beauty of the great outdoors. Rock Climbing Tuolumne Meadows leads the way to more than 1,000 traditional and sport routes and classic bouldering problems of all degrees of difficulty. Expert climbers Don Reid and Chris Falkenstein share their knowledge of this high-country area, with excellent face and crack climbs on granite domes plus alpine ascents on the surrounding high peaks.
