Bill Crnkovich, DeAnne Flynn : Salt Lake City: A Photographic Portrait before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Salt Lake City: A Photographic Portrait:

Just minutes from majestic mountains where skiers, boarders, and snowmobilers enjoy "the greatest snow on earth," and where bikers, hikers, and campers explore spectacular trails and wilderness, Salt Lake City has long been a magnet for the adventurous. This shining capital likewise attracts business, medical, and technology leaders, in addition to new residents and curious visitors who seek out this historic, one-of-a-kind city for its wide-ranging attractions, hometown hospitality, and superior quality of life. Surely, Salt Lake City's interesting past, remarkable present, and promising future make it one of America's must-see places - a truly exceptional destination. The Salt Lake Tabernacle, Temple Square, City and County Building, Brigham Young Historic Park, Pioneer Memorial Museum, and This is the Place Heritage Park are just a few highlights found in this magnificent photo journal.

About the Author
Photographer Bill Crnkovich is a native of Wisconsin and has lived in Connecticut and Virginia. Since 1994, he and his family have resided in South Jordan, Utah. His passion for the outdoors frequently takes him to the mountains and deserts: from the Grand Tetons to southern Utah's red rock country. Bill's background as a Mechanical Engineer is reflected in his attention to detail. He established Best of the West Photography in 2000 to showcase his magnificent western landscapes. His award-winning pictures grace many calendars and publications. Visit BestWestPhoto.com to see more of Bill's work. Writer DeAnne Flynn has lived in seven U.S. states, but proudly calls Utah home. A high honor graduate of Brigham Young University, DeAnne has worked as a news anchor/reporter, a corporate marketing director and spokesperson, a freelance script and copywriter, and as a touring national presenter with Time Out for Women. She discovered her passion for writing books by authoring The Time-Starved Family (2009) and The Mother's Mite (2011) while living in a shady community near Salt Lake City with her husband, seven children, beloved morky, and two vociferous parakeets. She gladly welcomes visitors at DeAnneFlynn.com.
