From Michigan State University Press : Schoolcraft's Narrative Journal of Travels before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Schoolcraft's Narrative Journal of Travels:

Bills When Henry met the Indians on Grand Island and told the story to Longfellow, it was the inspiration for Hiawatha. This is a great book and gives a lot of geographical information. What a trip. The Appendices have great information. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. the Narrative journal by Williams and MSU press By John C. Tramm This is great summary of Schoolcraft's journals of the Cass expedition. The excellent "foot-notes" and "Appendix" offer too the reader a vast resource of further study and validation, a must for the study of "fur-trade" and early Wisc./Minn. exploration

This important Henry Rowe Schoolcraft work, first issued by Michigan State University Press in 1953, is now available as the second title in MSU Press's Schoolcraft Series. The book was originally published in 1821 under the long and pretentious title Narrative Journey of travels through the Northwestern Regions of the United States, extending from Detroit through the Great Chain of American Lakes to the Sources of the Mississippi River, Performed as a Member of the expedition under Governor Cass, in the Year 1820; it recounts Schoolcraft's participation in the John C. Calhoun-sponsored 1820 expedition to explore the vast, uncharted territory stretching from the upper Great Lakes into what is now northern Minnesota. This volume, a marvelous blend of reportage, scientific findings, and the author's personal observations, contains a wealth of information about geography and topography woven together with vivid descriptions of scenic beauty, Native American culture, and day-to-day life as a member of an exploring expedition.
