Enos A. Mills : Waiting in the Wilderness before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Waiting in the Wilderness:

Enos A. Mills' "Waiting in the Wilderness" is a wonderful variety of animal stories and human stories from his own experience, or told to him by characters he met through his travels. From a miner's dog who rescues him from the rubble of an avalanche to keeping on the trail of a criminal as he covers his tracks. If you've never read any of Enos' books before, this is a good one to start on.

About the Author Enos A. Mills (1870-1922) is considered as the "Father of Rocky Mountain National Park." He was a naturalist, writer, speaker, nature guide, photographer, innkeeper, miner. Homesteading in Estes Park, Colorado, in 1885 brought him into intimate contact with the natural world. He wrote 16 books, all true accounts of his experiences in the wilderness.
